

Sculpting in the Capital

HIMANSHU ART INSTITUTE

This place offers both hobby classes and professional training in sculpture-making. "Our professional course provides the students with a certificate diploma in sculpture-making," says Mohit Minocha of the institute. While the hobby class would teach you the basics like clay modelling, the diploma course for one year starts with basic sketching, colour theory and portrait-making. The next level involves modelling in terracotta, wax acrylic and POP. The classes can either be taken during five days a week or during the weekend for three hours. They also teach wood and stone carvings.
